MESSAGE

Dr. Thong Khon
Minister of Tourism

The Department of Statistics and Tourism Information of the Ministry of Tourism (MOT) annually compiles and publishes collected data on tourism statistics report. It is an indispensable instrument for strategic planning and environmentally sustainable tourism development management. It consists of significant data on the status of international visitor arrivals and their average length of stay, domestic tourists, and tourist services.

Cambodia is rich in cultural, historical and natural resources. As a result it is noticed and ranked as one of the foremost growth destinations in Asia. As a matter of fact, we witnessed 2.01 million international visitor arrivals in the calendar year 2007, an 18.5% increase.

Cultural and historical Siem Reap, Phnom Penh and Sihanouk Ville offer visitors a cornucopia of fine restaurants, luxury hotels and other tourism facilities and services in which visitors shall really experience the authentic Khmer hospitality with a pleasant and memorable stay in Cambodia that intrigue you to come back. Sihanouk Ville has just reopened its airport to link between cultural tourism sites and coastal areas of Cambodia and to welcome direct flights from the countries in the region.

Visit Cambodia beyond Angkor, visitors can enjoy exotic ecotourism destinations for example, Mekong River Dolphins, RAMSAR internationally significant wetlands, mangrove forests, rainforests, coastal zones and the Great Lake (Tonlé Sap). Visitors can also experience varieties of lifestyles, livelihoods and cultures of ethnic minorities within the picturesque landscapes in north-eastern provinces. Having seen the significance of tourism linkages the Royal Government has approved upgrading of the regional airport in north-east Cambodia, which will attract and disperse visitors to community-based ecotourism sites. This important tourism initiative will contribute to the protection and conservation of natural resources and help reduce poverty in disadvantaged rural and remote areas of our country.

Hopefully this 2007 Statistics Report will be a crucial apparatus for those who are conducting research on the tourism industry of Cambodia. I would like to take this opportunity to bless the tourism industry of Cambodia to be sound, successful and sustainable forever.

Best wishes

Dr. Thong Khon
Minister
Ministry of Tourism

Khmer History

The Mon-Khmer race developed slowly during the first six centuries of the Christian era. Under Indian influence, a powerful maritime empire called “Funan” ruled over all the shores of the Gulf of Siam. Within a short time, this new power known as Chenla absorbed the Funanese Kingdom. In the late 7th century, Chenla broke into two parts: land Chenla (to the north) and water Chenla (to the south along the Gulf of Thailand). Land Chenla was fairly stable during the 8th century, whereas water Chenla was beset by dynastic rivalries.

At the beginning of the 9th century, the kings set up their capital in the present province of Siem Reap. For nearly six centuries, they erected two hundred temples as well as their sanctuaries in the Angkorian area of some 400 square kilometers in the Siem Reap Province.

King Suryavarman II (1113-1150) built the temples such as Angkor Wat, Thommanon, Chau Say Tevoda, Preah Palilay, Preah Pithu, and Banteay Samrè.

Jayavarman VII (1181-1220) was best known for his huge building program. Firstly, he built Ta Prohm (1186) and Preah Khan (1191) to dedicate to his parents. Secondly, he erected Banteay Kdei, Srah Srang, the Terrace of the Leper King, the Terrace of the Elephants, Neak Pean, Ta Som, Ta Nei, and some others in other parts of the country. Thirdly, he founded his great capital, Angkor Thom. Finally, in the center, he built the Bayon with its two hundred stone faces.

The decline of the Angkor era began after the death of King Jayavarman VII in the early 13th century. Due to the Siamese invasion and the limitation of the irrigation system, Khmer power declined so much that the king was finally obliged to move to the vicinity of Phnom Penh in 1431. Resulting from a series of Siamese and Cham invasions, the country was put as a French protectorate in 1863.

After regaining Independence in 1953, the country has had several names:

1. The Kingdom of Cambodia (under the Reachia Niyum Regime from 1953 to 1970);
2. The Khmer Republic (under the Lon Nol Regime from 1970 to 1975);
3. Democratic Kampuchea (under the Pol Pot Genocidal Regime from 1975 to 1979);
4. The People’s Republic of Kampuchea (1979-1989);
5. The State of Cambodia (1989-1993);
6. The Kingdom of Cambodia (1993 until now).

Just minutes from the breathtaking temples of ancient Angkor, Le Meridien offers a serene world of ease in which to relax and soothe the senses. Designed on a palette of European chic with infusions of intoxicating scents, espace, light and subtle Khmer motifs hued from local stone, there is no better place to retire from daylight hours of discovery.

Voted Cambodia's Leading Hotel and Cambodia's Leading Spa at the 2007 World Travel Awards
