The Kingdom of Cambodia riches in a wide variety of cultural and natural resources, therefore Cambodia tourism pillar is under "Cultural and Natural Tourism". Tourism has been regarded as a Green Economic which is one of the key areas to support a sustainable economic growth. Tourism plays a significant role in terms of job creation, accelerates economic growth, earns foreign revenue, preserves cultural heritage and environment, encourages a responsible tourism and is a potential driving force in poverty alleviation.

General Information

Khmer History

The Mon-Khmer race developed slowly during the first six centuries of the Christian era. Under Indian influence, a powerful maritime empire called "Funan" ruled over all the shores of the Gulf of Siam. Within a short time, this new power known as Chenla absorbed the Funanese Kingdom. In the late 7th century, Chenla broke into two parts: land Chenla (to the north) and water Chenla (to the south along the Gulf of Thailand). Land Chenla was fairly stable during the 8th century, whereas water Chenla was beset by dynastic rivalries.

At the beginning of the 9th century, the kings set up their capital in the present province of Siem Reap. For nearly six centuries, they erected two hundred temples as well as their sanctuaries in the Angkorian area of some 400 square kilometers in the Siem Reap Province.

King Suryavarman II (1113-1150) built the temples such as Angkor Wat, Thommanon, Chau Say Tevoda, Preah Palilay, Preah Pithu, and Banteay Samrè.

Jayavarman VII (1181-1220) was best known for his huge building program. Firstly, he built Ta Prohm (1186) and Preah Khan (1191) to dedicate to his parents. Secondly, he erected Banteay Kdei, Srah Srang, the Terrace of the Leper King, the Terrace of the Elephants, Neak Pean, Ta Som, Ta Nei, and some others in other parts of the country. Thirdly, he founded his great capital, Angkor Thom. Finally, in the center, he built the Bayon with its two hundred stone faces.

The decline of the Angkor era began after the death of King Jayavarman VII in the early 13th century. Due to the Siamese invasion and the limitation of the irrigation system, Khmer power declined so much that the king was finally obliged to move to the vicinity of Phnom Penh in 1431. Resulting from a series of Siamese and Cham invasions, the country was put as a French protectorate in 1863.

After regaining Independence in 1953, the country has had several names:

- 1. The Kingdom of Cambodia (under the Reachia Niyum Regime from 1953 to 1970);
- 2. The Khmer Republic (under the Lon Nol Regime from 1970 to 1975);
- 3. Democratic Kampuchea (under the Pol Pot Genocidal Regime from 1975 to 1979);
- 4. The People's Republic of Kampuchea (1979-1989);
- 5. The State of Cambodia (1989-1993);
- 6. The Kingdom of Cambodia (1993 until now).

Executive Summary of 2009 Report

2009 was a harsh year for the tourism industry in Southeast Asia. The global economic crisis created huge fluctuations in the prices of international commodities, such as oil, and volatility in the exchange rate. The worldwide economic downturn, when coupled with other factors such as regional political crisis, natural disasters, and the threat of pandemic disease (swine flu), created a perfect storm that washed away many of the gains made in the Asia-Pacific tourism sector in recent years. Tourism in the region saw a 2% drop in 2009. Cambodia's tourism industry suffered many of the impacts felt throughout the region, but showed remarkable resilience in key areas, such as overland travel and ecotourism that may prove critical to the future health of the country's tourism sector.

Although the world has faced many economic challenges over the past year, Cambodia's tourism has continued to grow, registering 2,161,577 international visitor arrivals in 2009, 1.70% increase compared over 2008. December was the peak month for tourist visits with 234, 962 arrivals documented, or 10.87% of total arrivals. January came in a close second with 218,691, or 10.12% of total arrivals; March showed 202,808 arrivals, or 9.38 of total arrivals; and February 200,789 arrivals, or 9.29% of total arrivals, followed by November with 195,570 arrivals, or 9.05% of total arrivals.

In the first quarter of 2009, the visitor arrivals to Cambodia showed a -1.07 % decrease. One could not have been faulted at the time for predicting a dismal year ahead for the sector. In a remarkable turnaround, however, the second quarter of 2009 showed a +4.66% increase when compared to the same period in 2008. Moreover, the international visitor arrivals from all regions showed a growing diversity in the profile of the "average" tourists to Cambodia. Visitor numbers from the Asia and Pacific regions were up +3.00%, while visitors from the ASEAN countries showed a notable increase of +25.41%. The numbers for Europeans showed a slight raise of +1.59%, while visitors from African were up an astounding +33.74%. Only the tourist numbers from the Americas and the Middle East showed slight declines of -1.83% and -6.16%, respectively. Perhaps as a result of Cambodia's increasingly diverse visitor profile, the tourism receipts stood at USD 1,561 million for 2009—indicating a decline of -2.13% when compared to the last year, and less of a decline than was expected in the face of crippling international economic trends.

By air

The majority of international visitors arrived by air, accounting for 1,111,729, or 51.43% of all visitors. 27.02% of air arrivals were registered at the Siem Reap International Airport, while 24.41% were registered at the Phnom Penh International Airport. One of the most noticeable statistical declines was in the number of tourists who traveled by air—Cambodia showed a -10.30% decline from the year before. Air travelers still remained a diverse bunch when hailing from the Southeast Asian region, however, with 25.25% arriving from Thailand, 39.06% from Vietnam, 7.63% from Singapore, 8.93% from Malaysia, 11.86% from Korea, and 2.92% from Laos, and 4.83% from other countries within the region.

By land

In 2009, overland travelers to Cambodia accounted for 39.59%, a sharp increase over the 23.99% registered in 2009. In particular, the share of waterway arrivals was 3.62% (an increase of 8.93%), but the share of day visitors was 5.36% (a decline of -6.60%). It could be speculated that this significant increase in overland arrivals helped counter the slowed growth in the number of tourists who traveled to Cambodia via air.

Purpose of Visit:

Tourists comprised the lion's share of international arrivals (for leisure and holiday), which accounted for 84.34% of total visitors to Cambodia, while 6.65% of international arrivals were business travelers, 2.45% official travel, 4.78% came to visit friends and relatives, and 1.78% of visitors came for other reasons.

Visitor Profile:

2009 showed a bit of a gender divide in international traveler numbers to Cambodia, with men accounting for 61.42% of all international visitor arrivals. 66.5% of visitors were here on their first visit. Notably, 33.5% travelers registered as return visitors—indicating an increase in repeat tourists when compared to 2007 – 2008. Among international arrivals to Cambodia, the following occupational categories were represented: 13.13% of visitors were retired persons, 12.07% teachers, 6.88% volunteer, 11.71% government officials, 15.33% business persons, 10.93% employees, 13.40% students, 12.71% housewife, and 3.84% others.

Travel/trip profile:

The data of hotel performance in 2009 indicated that the overall occupancy grew by 63.57% and the average length of stay of international tourists climbed to 6.45 days. The average expenditure of tourists was high at USD 117.25 per day. 49.87% of visitors who visited Siem Reap Angkor made visit to other destinations in Cambodia. Among the international tourists visiting Cambodia, 48.96% were free independent travelers (FIT) and 51.04% were group inclusive travelers (GIT).

Source of Market:

The main markets for Cambodia in 2009 were: Vietnam 14.63%, Republic of Korea 9.15%, United States of America 6.87%, Japan 6.77%, China 5.93%, The United Kingdom 4.94%, France 4.88%, Thailand 4.72%, Laos 4.36%, and Australia 3.91%.

Domestic Market:

All tourist sites throughout Cambodia received a combined total of 7,021,509 domestic tourists in 2009, showing an overall increase of 4.3%. Siem Reap province received 1,279,356 visitors with an increase of 7.0%; whereas Phnom Penh received 1,973,370 visitors, an increase of 10.5%. Cambodia's coastal areas (which range from the provinces of Kampong Som, Kampot, Kep, and Koh Kong) decreased by -5.5% compared to 2008, Kampong Som showed a slight decrease of -0.4%, while Kampot showed a sharp decline of -29.8%. Travel to Kep, however, increased by 12.7% and visitors to Koh Kong rose remarkably to 42%--a robust increase that may in part be attributed to new efforts and campaigns of government to attract ecotourism to the Koh Kong province.

In addition; visitors to other ecotourism destinations in Cambodia—the Northeast provinces of Kratie, Stung Treng, Rattanakiri, and Mondulkiri—increased as a whole by 12.7%. It is worth noting that far from showing declining numbers in 2009, tourist visits to Cambodia's ecotourism destinations rose sharply, even in a depressed tourism economy. If a few conclusions might be garnered by these statistics, it is that Cambodia's tourism can continue to grow in the face of the worldwide economic crisis by increasingly focusing on ecotourism and making every effort to attract tourists from the Southeast Asian region, such as Vietnam and Thailand, to counter losses from the sinking American and European economies.
